

All NEMO Committee Press Release: 30 June 2023

All NEMOs publish CACM Annual Report 2022 on intraday and day-ahead coupling

The fourth CACM Annual Report, prepared by the Nominated Electricity Market Operators (NEMOs) in cooperation with Transmission System Operators (TSOs), monitors the implementation of the Capacity Allocation and Congestion Management Regulation (CACM Regulation) and the associated Algorithm methodology.

The CACM Annual Report 2022 has been published on the All NEMO Committee website, today, Friday 30 June.

The report provides a comprehensive overview of the Single Day-Ahead Coupling (SDAC) and Single Intraday Coupling (SIDC) operations in 2022 and gives a broad outline of the current and future performance of market coupling algorithms and R&D activities undertaken.

The CACM Annual Report 2022 summarises the work achieved by NEMOs and TSOs in the day-ahead and intraday coupling projects to ensure successful operation of market coupling solutions. A regular and transparent assessment of their operations and performance is key to supporting the ultimate goal of all projects - an effective integrated EU energy market.

The All NEMO Committee has organised a physical event, the first NEMO Committee Annual Conference, which can also be joined online, on the CACM Annual Report 2022, to be held on 20 September 2023. The agenda will be published soon.